

Author: Lisa D. Cook

Title: Lessons for Expanding the Share of Disadvantaged Students in Economics from the AEA Summer Program

As former co-director and director of and instructor in the AEA Summer Program at Michigan State University, the author declares that she has had relevant material or financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper. The program received major financial support from the American Economic Association, the National Science Foundation, and Michigan State University.