

Disclosure Statement

Kyle Schirmann (PhD Student, Harvard Business School)

“Assessing Information: The Content of Asynchronous Communication in Hybrid Work”

- I declare that I have no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.
- I benefited from general funding from the Harvard Business School Doctoral Programs Office, non-specific to this study.
- The focal organization did not financially support this study, nor did it require review of the findings before publication.
- The study was approved by the Harvard University IRB (IRB22-0292).