

The Costs of Sovereign Default: Evidence from Argentina

Disclosure Statement: Benjamin Hébert

May 19, 2017

Financial support was provided by the Harvard Business School Doctoral Programs Office, Princeton University, and a Harvard University International Economics grant. Markit had the right to review this paper for disclosure of proprietary data and for prejudicial statements regarding Markit or its industry. Hébert's spouse works in the financial services industry and has business interactions with firms involved in the litigation described in this paper. His spouse has not contributed to or participated in the preparation of this paper, and neither Hébert nor his spouse have a direct or material indirect financial interest in the outcome of the litigation.